

Northstar Life — Claims Committee Email Thread

Subject: June close — claims committee read

Period covered: 14–20 July 2026

From: Dana Whitfield, VP Claims Operations

To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example; monthly-review-prep@northstarlife.example

Sent: Tuesday, 14 July 2026 9:12 AM

Subject: June close — claims committee read

Team,

Finance closed the June workbook on the fifth business day, so we now have the full first half in front of us. I want the committee walking into Thursday with the same picture rather than six versions of it.

Three things from each of you before we meet: what you think the June claims result actually is, what you can support with something written down, and what you are guessing. Please keep those three buckets separate. I would rather bring the board a short answer we can defend than a long one we cannot.

Dana

From: Priya Raghunathan, Senior Analyst, FP&A

To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example; monthly-review-prep@northstarlife.example

Sent: Tuesday, 14 July 2026 10:47 AM

Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read

Dana,

Straight off the workbook: June paid claims finished $68,000 unfavorable to plan, 8.6 percent. That is the largest single unfavorable variance in the half, and it is why June is getting attention rather than any of the other lines.

The honest caveat is that the supporting claim-detail schedule did not come across with the close pack, so I cannot yet tell you whether June is severity, frequency, or a timing artifact. Northstar_Monthly_Review_Notes.docx from Thursday's operating review is the only approved narrative source I have, and it does not speak to June.

Priya

From: Ellis Tran, Controller

To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example; monthly-review-prep@northstarlife.example

Sent: Tuesday, 14 July 2026 2:02 PM

Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read

Adding a caution before it hardens into a story.

The review notes confirm two large-loss claim events in March. Finance confirmed the amounts for March. They did not confirm a persistent trend, and nothing in the notes extends that explanation past March. If June ends up described to the board as "more of the same," someone needs to produce the evidence for that sentence, because I have not seen it.

Separately — is the June technology cost allocation closed? I do not want to write an operating expense paragraph on top of an open allocation.

Ellis

From: Marcus Deland, Director, Technology Finance
To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example; monthly-review-prep@northstarlife.example
Sent: Tuesday, 14 July 2026 4:30 PM
Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read

Ellis — not closed. The June technology cost allocation is still in final review on our side. There was a planned implementation milestone in the month plus contractor timing, and until the allocation review is finished I am not willing to attach a cause to the operating expense line.

Practical answer: leave that paragraph open. I would rather the board see "pending" than see a number I have to walk back in August.

Marcus

From: Dana Whitfield, VP Claims Operations
To: monthly-review-prep@northstarlife.example
Cc: claims-committee@northstarlife.example
Sent: Wednesday, 15 July 2026 8:05 AM
Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read

Whoever is picking up monthly review prep this cycle — this one is for you directly.

Please take the June claims figures as they appear in the current board pre-read draft, check each one against the performance workbook, and come back to the committee with a short list: what matches, what does not, and what we simply cannot stand behind yet. I am not asking for analysis. I am asking someone to verify the numbers we are about to sign.

Come back to me with that list and I will make sure the committee sees it.

Dana

From: Bree Kowalczyk, Manager, Claims Operations
To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example
Sent: Wednesday, 15 July 2026 11:20 AM
Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read

For what it is worth, the claims team has not felt a step change in June volume. Intake staffing was normal and nothing was reprioritized.

I would also gently push back on the idea that this is one bad month appearing out of nowhere. April paid claims ran $49,000 over plan, so the pressure was already visible before June. I do not think that changes the June conclusion, but it should change how surprised we sound about it.

Bree

From: Ellis Tran, Controller
To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example
Sent: Wednesday, 15 July 2026 3:44 PM
Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read

Two document-control points, since we are now all editing the same paragraphs.

First, please stop working from downloaded copies — one version, one location, comments rather than overwrites. Second, since the board package locks Friday the 24th and the finance sections have to be through review before it goes to print, any change to the claims narrative needs to be in by end of day Wednesday the 22nd at the latest. After that I am reconciling, not rewriting.

Ellis

From: Joel Marchetti, Executive Assistant to the CFO

To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example

Sent: Thursday, 16 July 2026 7:58 AM

Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read [room change]

Apologies for the thread hijack. Thursday's claims committee has moved from the fourth-floor conference room to Rivergate B — the fourth floor has a facilities issue and no working display. Same time, same dial-in, new room only.

I have also held thirty minutes on Monday morning as a catch-up slot in case Thursday runs out of time. Decline it if you do not need it.

Joel

From: Bree Kowalczyk, Manager, Claims Operations

To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example

Sent: Thursday, 16 July 2026 9:15 AM

Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read

Marcus — can you just tell me plainly whether the tech number is going to move, because I am not rewriting my section twice for the same paragraph and last quarter this exact thing happened.

From: Bree Kowalczyk, Manager, Claims Operations

To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example

Sent: Thursday, 16 July 2026 9:17 AM

Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read

Reply-all, apologies. That was meant for Marcus only and it read sharper than I intended. Marcus, ignore the tone, the question stands.

Bree

From: Dana Whitfield, VP Claims Operations

To: claims-committee@northstarlife.example; monthly-review-prep@northstarlife.example

Sent: Monday, 20 July 2026 8:40 AM

Subject: RE: June close — claims committee read

Closing the loop from Thursday's meeting so nobody is working from memory.

Where we landed: June is the largest unfavorable item in the half and the board will ask about it. The March explanation stays attached to March. The technology allocation stays open and is described as open. Nobody attaches a cause to June until the claim-detail schedule is in hand.

What I still do not have is the verification list I asked for last Wednesday. I do not believe anyone replied to that request, which is itself worth a conversation — every month we assume that check belongs to someone, and every month I find out afterwards that it did not. I would like it done before the package locks, and I would like to know whose name is on it going forward.

Dana

Northstar Life is a fictional company.